PROVERBS.

IN these Prouerbis of Salomon is contened myche prudence and vndurstonding, 3ouen to Salomon bi the Spirit of God, and acordinge in many places with the gospel of Crist. And as Crist techith in his gospel goostli wisdom oonli, so Salomon techith worldli warnesse, how a man owith to gouerne him prudentli in the world, and to be war of perels and mescheues, and to fle nedynesse, and to schewe bi his gouernaunce, that the prudence of God is with him, which is arettid as lizt, and folie is arettid as derknesse.

 12 men couereth wickidnesse. Hate rereth strines; and alle giltis charite couereth.
 13 In the lippis of the wis man is founde wisdom; and a ȝerde in the rigge of hym 14 that is nedi in herte. Wise men hiden kunnyng; the mouth forsothe of the fool 15 is next to confusioun. The substaunce of the riche man the cite of his strengthe; the ferd of pore men the nedynesse of

CAP. XIII.

1 The wise sone the doctrine of the fader; who forsothe is a gilere, hereth not, 2 whan he is vnder nomyn. Of the frut of his mouth a man shal be fild with goodis; the soule forsothe of 'the lawe brekeris<sup>c</sup> 3 wicke. Who kepeth his mouth, kepeth his soule; who forsothe is vnausid to 4 speken, shal felen euelis. The slowe wile, and wile not; the soule forsothe of werkende men shal ben inwardliche fattid.
5 A lesing woord the rijt<sup>z</sup>wis man shal wlaten; the vnpitous<sup>d</sup> man forsothe 6 shendeth, and shal be shent. Rijt<sup>z</sup>wisnesse kepeth the weie of the innocent; vnpitousnesse forsothe supplauntith the 7 synnere. Ther is as a riche man, whan no thing he hath; and ther is as a pore man, whan in many riches 8 he is. The a3een biyng of the soule of a man his richessis; who forsothe is a 9 pore man, blamyng suffreth not. The list that thenken yuels; but io3e sueth hem, that maken counsels of pees. What euer<sup>e</sup> 21 bifallith to a iust man, it schal not make hym sori; but wickid men schulen be fillid with yuel. False lippis is abhominacioun 22 to the Lord; but thei that don feithfuli, plesen him. A fel<sup>e</sup> man hilith kunnyng; 23 and the herte of vnwise men stirith foli.

The hond of stronge men schal haue lord- 24 schip; but the hond that is slow, schal serue to tributis. Morenyng in the herte 25 of a iust man schal make hym meke; and he schal be maad glad bi a good word.
He that dispisith harm* for a frend, is a 26 iust man; but the weie of wickid men schal disseyue hem. A gileful man schal 27 not fynde wynnyng; and the substaunce<sup>f</sup> of man schal be the prijs of gold†. Lijf 28 wrong weie leedith to deeth.

CAP. XIII.

A wijs sone is the teching of the fadir; 1 but he that is a scornere, herith not, whanne he is repreuyd. A man schal be fillid with 2

CAP. XVII.

1 Betere is a drie morsel with ioze, than 3 eritage he shal deuyde. As bi fyr is proued siluer, and gold bi the chymney, 4 so hertes the Lord preueth. The euele man obesheth to the wicke tunge; and the desceyuable consenteth to the liende 5 lippis. Who dispiseth a pore man, mys-seyth to his makere; and who gladeth in the falling of an other, shal not ben vn-6 punshid. The crowne of olde men sones of sones; and the glorie of sones the 7 fadris of hem. There semeth not the fool faire set woordis; ne the prince a 8 liende lippe. Most kinde iemme the abiding of the abidere; whider euere he turneth<sup>g</sup> hymself, prudentli he vnder-9 standeth<sup>h</sup>. Who helith the gilte, secheth frenshipis; who with an other sermoun 10 reherceth, seuereth the federed<sup>i</sup>. Mor profiteth correccioun anent the prudent, than an hundrid veniaunces anent the 11 fol. Euermor striues secheth the euel man; the cruel forsothe aungil shal be 12 sent azen hym. It spedeth mor to azen come to a she here, whan hir whelpis ben take away, than to a fol trostende 13 to hymself in his folie. Who zeldeth euelis for goodis, shal not go awei euel 14 fro his hous. Who leueth water, hed is

CAP. XVII.

Betere is a drie mussel with ioye, than 1 an hous ful of sacrifices with chidyng.
A wijs seruaunt schal be lord of fonned 2 sones; and he schal departe eritage among britheren. As siluer is preued bi fier, 3 and gold is preued bi a chymnei, so the Lord preueth hertis. An yuel man obei- 4 eth to a wickid tunge||; and<sup>d</sup> a fals man obeieth to false lippis. He that dispisith 5 a pore man, repreueth his maker; and he that is glad in the fallyng of another man, schal not be vnpunyschid. The coronne 6 of elde men is the sones of sones; and the glorie of sones is the fadris of hem.
Wordis wel set togidere bisemen not a 7 fool; and a liyng lippe bicometh not a prince. A precious stoon¶ moost accept- 8 able is the abiding** of hym that sekith; whidur euere he turneth hym silf, he vn-durstandith prudentli. He that helith 9 trespas, sekith frenshipis; he that rehersith||| bi an hiz word, departith hem, that ben knyght togidere in pees. A blam- 10 yng profitith more at a prudent man, than an hundryd woundis at a fool. Euere an 11 yuel man sekith stryues; forsothe a cruel aungel schal be sent azens hym. It sped- 12 ith more to meete a femal here, whanne the<sup>e</sup> whelpis ben rauyschid<sup>f</sup>, than a fool eschewe folie, to the tyme that I schulde seen, what were profitable to the sonus of men; the whiche thing don, nede is to ther lif in the noumbre of dazes vnder 4 the sunne. I magniefiede my werkis, I bilde to me houses, and plauntide vynes; 5 I made gardynes and appil gardynes, and I plauntide them with the trees of 6 alle kinde; and I made out to me cys-ternes<sup>i</sup> of watis, that I schulde watren 7 the wode of the buriounynge tres. I and myche<sup>k</sup> meyne I hadde; droues<sup>n</sup> also,

and grete flockis of sheep, ouer alle men 8 that weren befor me in Jerusalem. I hepede to me siluer<sup>r</sup> and gold, and substaunces of kingus and of prouynces; I made to me singeris and singeresses, and the delices of sonus of men, cuppis and men, that thei schulden be ocupied ther-

 14 dercnesses. Of the wise man the eȝen in his hed, the fool goth in dercnesses; and I lernede, that o diyng was of euer

9 What hath a man more of his trauaile?
10 I saȝ the affliccioun, that God ȝaf to the sonus of men, that thei be tormentid in it.
11 Alle thingus he made goode in ther tyme, and the world he toc to<sup>x</sup> the<sup>y</sup> disputisoun<sup>z</sup> of them, that a man finde not the werc that God wroȝte fro the bigynnyng to 12 the ende. And I kneȝ that ther was not<sup>a</sup> betere, but to gladen, and to do good 13 in ther lif. Eche man forsothe that etith and drinketh, and seeth good of his 14 trauaile; that the ȝifte of God is. I lernede that alle werkis, that God made, dwellen stille in to with oute ende; wee moun not to them any thing adden, or taken awei, that God made, that he be 15 drad. That is maad, it dwellith stille; that ben to come, now weren; and God 16 restoreth that, that ȝide awei. I saȝ vnder sunne<sup>b</sup> in the<sup>c</sup> place of dom vnpitousnesse; and in the<sup>d</sup> place of rijtwis-17 nesse wickidnesse. And I seide in myn

Lord shal demen; and tyme of alle thing 18 thanne shal be. I seide in myn herte of the sonus of men, that God shulde prouen hem, and shewen to ben lic to bestis.
19 Therefore oon is the diyug of men and of bestis, and euene the condicioun of euere lic maner brethen alle thingus, and no thing hath a man more than a beste.

20 Alle thingus vnderlin to vanyte, and alle of his trauel? I siȝ the turment, which<sup>10</sup> God ȝaf to the sonus of men, that thei be 'no but<sup>q</sup> to be glad, and to do good werkis in his lijf†. For whi ech man that etith<sup>13</sup> and drinkith, and seeth good of his trauel; this is the ȝifte of God. I haue lerned<sup>14</sup> that alle werkis<sup>r</sup>, whiche<sup>s</sup> God made, lasten stidfastli 'til in to<sup>t</sup> with outen ende; we moun not addeȝ ony thing to tho<sup>u</sup>, nether take awei fro tho thingis, whiche God rijtfulnesse. And Y seide in myn herte,<sup>17</sup> The Lord schal deme a iust man, and an

1 Ther is and an other euel, that I saȝ but a straunge man shal deuoure it. This is vanyte<sup>a</sup>, and a gret wretchidnesse. If<sup>3</sup> a man gendrith<sup>b</sup> an hundrid† fre<sup>c</sup> sones, and lyueth many ȝeris, and hath many daies of age, and his soule vsith not the goodis of his catel, and wantith biriyng; Y pronounce of this man, that a deed borun child is betere than he. For he<sup>4</sup> cometh in veyn‡, and goith to derknessis; and his name schal be don awei bi for-ȝetyng. He siȝ not the sunne, nether<sup>5</sup>

It is betere to se that, that thou coueitist,<sup>9</sup>

6 herte of foolis where is gladnesse. Betere is to be chastisid of a wis man, than bi 7 flatering of foolis to be desceyued; for as the soun of brennende thornes vnder a 8 pot, so the lazging of a fool. But and this vanyte. Chaleng disturbeth the wise man, and shal leesen the strengthe of his 9 herte. Betere is forsothe the ende of ori-soun<sup>c</sup> than the begynnyng. Betere is a<sup>d</sup> patient man than the enhauncende hym-10 self. Be thou not swift to wrathen; for wrathe in the bosum of a fool restith.
11 Ne seye thou, What wenest thou of cause is, that the rathere tymes betere weren than now ben? folie forsothe is such a 12 maner asking. Profitablere forsothe is wisdam with riches, and more pro-13 fitith to men seende the sunne. Forsothe as wisdam defendith, so<sup>e</sup> monee; this forsothe more hath lernyng and wisdam, 14 that lif thei ȝeelden to ther weldere. Behold the werkes of God, that no man mai 15 amende, whom he despiside. In the goode dai vse goodes, and the euele dai be war biforn; as forsothe this, so and in the tyme that passith as schadowe? ether who may schewe to hym, what thing vndur sunne schal come aftir hym?

CAP. VII.

CAP. X.

1 Fleȝis diende leesen the swotnesse of the oynement. More precious is wisdom 2 and litil glorie at tyme, than folie. The herte of the wise man in the riȝthalf of saȝ vnder the sunne, as bi errorr goende 6 out fro the face of the prince; a fool set in heeȝ dignete, and riche men to seete 7 benethe. I saȝ seruauntis in hors, and princes goende as seruauns vp on erthe.

 8 Who delueth a dich, fallith in to it; and who scatereth the hegg, shal biten hym 9 the shadewe eddere. Who berth ouer stones, shal be tormentid in hem; and an hook, and as briddis ben takun with a snare, so men ben takun in yuel tyme*, whanne it cometh sudeynli on hem. Also 13 Y siȝ this<sup>s</sup> wisdom vndur the sunne, and Y preuede it the mooste. A litil citee†, 14 cam aȝens it, and cumpasside it with palis, and he bildide<sup>i</sup> strengthis<sup>k</sup> bi cumpas; and<sup>l</sup> bisegyng was maad perfit<sup>m</sup>. And a pore 15 man and a wiȝs was foundun ther ynne; and he delyuerede the citee bi his wisdom, and no man bithouȝte aftirward on that pore man. And Y seide, that wisdom is 16 betere than strengthe; hou therfor is the wisdom of a pore man dispisid, and hise wordis ben not herd? The wordis of wise 17 men ben herd in silence, more than the cry of a prince among foolis.

and he shal not deliuere the cursid fro his lippis; for of the reenus of hym wit-nesse is God, and of the herte of hym he is verre<sup>d</sup> serchere, and of the tunge of 7 hym herere<sup>e</sup>. For the Spirit of the Lord fulfilde<sup>f</sup> the rondnesse of londis; and that, that conteneth alle thingus, kunnyng hath 8 of vois. For that 'he that<sup>g</sup> speketh wicke

CAP. VII.

1 I am forsothe and a deadli man, lic to men, and of 'the erthi<sup>u</sup> kinde of hym that rathere is mad, and in the wombe 2 of the modir figured I am flesh. In time of ten monethis cruddid I am in to blod, of the sed of man, and of couena-

6 is to alle to lif, and lijc issue. For that I desirede, and there is 3iue to me wit; 7 and I inwardli clepide, and there cam in<sup>v</sup> me the spirit of wisdom. And I putte it 8 biforn to reumes, and setes; and richesses I seide no thing to ben in comparisoun of it, ne I comparisounede to 9 it a precious ston; for alle gold in comparisoun of it is a litil grauel, and as clei siluer shal ben eyemed in the sizte

CAP. VII.

Forsothe and Y<sup>i</sup> am a deedli man, lijk<sup>k</sup> 1 men, and of erthli kynde of hym that was maad first, and in the wombe of the<sup>l</sup> modir Y was fourmed fleische. ## CAP. VIII.

1 Therefore it ateyneth from ende vnto ende strongli, and disposeth alle thingus 2 sweeteli. This I loouede, and sozte it out fro my zouth; and I sozte to taken it a spouse to me, and loouere I am mad of 3 the foorme of it. It hauende the cumpanye of God, glorifieth the ientilnesse of it; but and of alle thingis<sup>e</sup> the Lord 4 loouede it. Forsothe the techeresse it is of the discipline of God, and<sup>f</sup> the cheser-5 esse of the werkis of hym. And if richesses ben desirid in the<sup>ff</sup> lif, what richere than wisdom, that wercheth alle thingis?
 6 If forsothe wit wercheth, who of these that ben, more is crafti man than it?
 7 And if riztwisnesse a man looueth, the trauailes of this<sup>g</sup> han grete vertues; sobrenesse forsothe and prudence it techeth, and riztwisnesse, and vertue; than the whiche more profitable no thing is in lif 8 to men<sup>h</sup>. And if multitude of kunnyng desireth a man, it knowith the passid thingus, and of the to comen it eymeth; it knowith the felnesse<sup>i</sup> of wrdis, and the soilingis off argumentis; the toknes and wndris it knowith, er thei ben don; and the chaunsis of tymes and of worldis.
 9 Thanne I purposide this to bringe to me, to festeyek with me; witende for with me it shal comune of goodis, and ther shal be togidere speche of thenking, and of 10 myn anoze. I haue for this to cump-anyes clernesse, and wrshipec anent the 11 elderes; jung and sharp I shal be founde in dom, and in the sizte of myzti men

And whanne it is oon, it may alle thingis; 27 and it dwellith in it silf, and renulith alle thingis, and bi naciouns it berith ouer it silf in to hooli soulis; it makith the frendis of God* and profetes. For God loueth 28 no man, no<sup>s</sup> but hym that dwellith with wisdom. Forwhi this wisdom is fairere 29 than the sunne, and is aboue al the<sup>ss</sup> disposicioun of sterres; wisdom comparisound to lizt, is foundun the formere. Forwhi 30 nizt cometh aftir that lizt; but wysdom ouercometh malice. Therfor wisdom 1 stretchith forth fro the ende til to the ende strongli, and disposith alle thingis swetly.

CAP. VIII.

I louede this wisdom muad, and Y 2 souzte it out fro my zongthe; and Y souzte to take it a spousesse† to me, and Y am maad a louyere of the fairnesse therof.
 He that hath the felouschip‡ of God, glo- 3 rifieth the gentilnesse therof; but also the Lord of alle thingis louede it. For it 4 is the techeresse of the lernyng of God, and cheseresse<sup>u</sup> of hise werkis. And if 5 richessis ben coueitid in lijf, what is richere than wisdom, that worchith alle thingis? Sotheli if wit worchith, who is 6 a crafti maker more than wisdom, of these wisdam; and the glorie of them dred of 9 God. Nyne vnouertrowable<sup>r</sup> thingus of 11 Blisful that dwellith with a womman weel felende, and that in his tunge is not slyden, and that seruede not to the 12 vnwrthi hymself. Blisful that findith a verre frend, and that telleth out ri3twis-13 nesse to the herende ere. Hou gret that findith wisdam and kunnyng; but not

CAP. XXV.

In thre thingis it is plesid to my spirit, 1 which ben appreued bifore God and men; acordyng of britheren, and loue of nei3-2 boris, a<sup>x</sup> man and womman wel consentyng<sup>e</sup> to hem silf. My soule hatide thre 3 spicis, and Y am greued greetli to the soule of hem*; a pore man proud, and a 4 riche man liere, and an eld man a fool and vnwitti. Hou schalt thou fynde in thin 5 telleth out ri3tfulnesse to an eere heringe.

He is ful greet that fyndith wisdom and 13

ISAIAH.

No man, whan the profetes he shal seen with versis<sup>b</sup> to ben discriued, in metre eyne he<sup>c</sup> hem anent<sup>d</sup> the Ebrues to ben bounden, and any thing<sup>e</sup> lic to han of Salmes, or of the werkus of Salomon ; but that in Demostene and Tullio it is wont to ben do, that bi dyuyseouns, and vnder distincçiouns thei ben<sup>f</sup> writen, the whiche forsothe in prose, and not in vers<sup>ff</sup> wryten. Wee forsothe, to the profit of rederes purueyende, the newe remenyng with a newe maner of writing han<sup>g</sup> distinctly write<sup>g</sup>. And first, of Isaie it is to wite<sup>h</sup>, that in his sermoun he is wys ; forsothe as<sup>i</sup> a noble man, and of curteis fair speche, ne any thing is mengd of cherlhed in his faire speche. Wherefore it falleth, that the translacioun shal not moun kepe the flour of his sermoun, biforn othere. Theraftir also this is to be leid to, that not more<sup>k</sup> he is to be seyde a profete, than euaungelist. So forsothe alle the mysteries of Crist<sup>l</sup> and the<sup>m</sup> chirche<sup>mm</sup> to cleer, 'or cleerli<sup>n</sup>, he pursuede, that not hym thou weene of thyng to come to profecien, but of the<sup>o</sup> thingis<sup>p</sup> passid<sup>q</sup> storie<sup>r</sup> to weue. Wherefore I eyne the Seenty Remenoures that tyme not to han<sup>s</sup> wold the sacramens of ther beleue to shewe ful clerly to the hethene, lest hoeli<sup>t</sup> to dogges, and margarites to swyn thei zeeue. The whiche whan this making zee shul rede, of hem<sup>u</sup> zee shul taken heed<sup>v</sup>, 'or perceyue<sup>w</sup>, hid<sup>x</sup> thing<sup>y</sup>. Ne I vnknowe of hou myche trauaile it be the profetes to vnderstonden, ne liztly any man to moun demen of the remenyng, but if he schal<sup>z</sup> vnderstonden<sup>zz</sup> byfore he schal reden ; wee also to ben opene to the bitingus of manye men, the whiche bi enuye styrende, that that thei moun not han, thei dispisen<sup>a</sup>. Thanne I witende and sleeze, in to the flaume putte the hond ; and nerthelater<sup>b</sup> this of nozesum rederes I preze, that as Grekes after the Seenty translatores, Aquylam, and Symachum, and Theodocian thei reden, or for studie of ther doctrine, or that the Seenty more they vnderstonde of the togidere leiynge<sup>c</sup> of hem, so and these namely oon<sup>d</sup> remenour aftir the rathere vouche thei saf to han. Rede thei rathere, and aftirward dispise they ; lest thei ben seen not of dom, but of presumpcioun of hate vnknownen thyngus to dampnen. Forsothe Isaie profeciede in Jerusalem and in Jewerie, not jit the ten lynages led in to caitifte ; and off euer either rewme, now togidere, now<sup>e</sup> seuerendely, he ordeynede the profecie. And tho<sup>z</sup><sup>f</sup> other while he bihold to the present storie, and aftir the caitifte of Babiloyne he betocne<sup>g</sup> the azeencomyng of the puple in to Jewerie, nerthelater<sup>e</sup> al his bisynesse is of the cleping

As seynt Jerom seith in the prolog of Ysaie, Isaie is ful witti and ful opyn in his wrytyng in Ebreu, thou3 the translacioun in to Latyn mi3te not kepe the<sup>b</sup> fairnesse of speche. Isaye is worthi to be seid not oneli a profete, but more, a gospellere, for he declarith so opynli the mysteries<sup>c</sup> of Crist and of hooli chirche, that thou gesse hym not oneli<sup>d</sup> to ordeyne a<sup>e</sup> profesie of thing to comynge, but to ordeyne a storie of thingis passid. Ysaie profesiede in Jerusalem and in Judee, whanne the ten lynagis of Israel weren not 3it led in to caitiftee; and he ordeyneth a<sup>f</sup> profesie of euer either rewme, sum tyme of both togidere, sum tyme of ech bi it silf. And whanne Ysaie biholdith sum tyme to the present storie, and signefieth the comynge a3en of the puple in to Judee aftir the caitifte of Babiloyne, netheles al his bisynesse, that is, principal entent, is of the clepyng of hethene men, and of the comyng of Crist. Al this is the sentence of Jerom in the prolog of<sup>g</sup> Ysaie. Here it is to vndurstonde, that Isaie bigan to profesie bifore that the ten lynagis weren led in to caitiftee of Assiriens, as Jerom seith here; but he profesiede aftir this caitiftee, aftir Ezechies deth, in the tyme of Manasses, as it is seid in the fourthe book of Kyngis the<sup>h</sup> twentithe chapitre<sup>i</sup>, and in many mo places. This seith 'a postille<sup>k</sup> on Jeroms prolog on Ysaie. For as Ebreis seien, and Lire witnessith on the firste chapitre of Isaie, Manasses ordeynede and demyde Isaye to be sawid with ynne a cedre tree, that closid hym with ynne it silf bi myracle, whanne Manasses hadde demed hym vniustli to deth<sup>l</sup>. Also alle profetis that ben not teld opynli in the text, whanne and in what tyme thei profesieden, profesieden in the same tyme in which the profetis goynge next bifore profesieden, that ben teld in the text vndur whiche kyngis and tymes thei profesieden, as Jerom seith in his prologe on the twelue Profetis, and it is sette in the bigynnyng of Osee. Comynli alle the derk places of the<sup>m</sup> profetis moun be vndurstondu<sup>n</sup> listli bi thre reulis. The firste is this, that the principal entent of the profetis is to declare the mysterie of Cristis incarnacioun, passioun, resurreccioun, ascensioun, and the<sup>n</sup> comyng to<sup>o</sup> the general doom, and the pupplischyng of the gospel, and the conuercioun of hethene men, and the tribulacioun of hooli chirche in this lijf, and the blis of heuene therfor<sup>p</sup>. The secounde reule is this, that the profetis warnen the puple of Jewis of her grete synnes, and exciten hem to do penaunce; and thanne thei schulen gete remyssion of her synnes, and grace in present tyme, and glorie with outen ende; ellis thei schulen haue tribulacioun in this lijf, and peyn with outen ende. The thridde reule is this, that the profetis rehersen ofte benefices ȝouun of God bifor to the Jewis, to counforte hem to ȝyue credence to goodis bihiȝt in her profesies; and thanne the stories of Moises lawe, ether<sup>s</sup> of Josue, Judicum, Regum, and Paralipomenon, and of othere historial<sup>t</sup> bookis schulen be wel lokid; and schortli to seie, the profetis schulen be expounded bi the text of Moises lawe, and of othere historial bookis of the Elde Testament, ether bi the text of the Newe Testament. The literal vnderstandyng of hooli scripture is the ground of al gostli vnderstandyng therof, that is, of allegorik, of moral, and of anagogik. No goostli vnderstandyng is autentik<sup>u</sup>, no<sup>v</sup> but it be groundid in the text opynli, ether in opyn resoun, suyng of principiis, ether reulis of feith<sup>w</sup>, as seynt Austin witnessith<sup>x</sup> opynli in his pistle to Vincente, Donatiste, and in his book of Soliloquies, and Jerom on Jonas, and Lire on the bigynnyng of Genesis, and in many placis of hooli scripture, and Ardmakan in his book of Questionis of Armenyes. Therfor men moten seke the treuthe of the text, and be war of goostli vnderstandyng, ether moral fantasie, and ȝyue not ful credence therto, no but it be groundid opynly in the text of hooli writ, in o place or<sup>y</sup> other, ethir in opyn resoun, that may not be auoidid; for ellis it wole as likyngli be applied to falsnesse as to treuthe, and it hath disseyued grete men in oure daies, bi ouer greet trist to<sup>z</sup> her fantasies. Literal ether historial vnderstandyng techith what thing is don; allegorik techith what we owen for<sup>a</sup> to bileue; moral ether tropologik techith what we owen to do to fle vices, and kepe vertues; anagogik techith what we owen to<sup>b</sup> hope of euerlastyng meede in heuene. Of these foure vnderstandyngis 'schal be<sup>c</sup> seid pleyulier, 'if God wole<sup>d</sup>, on the bigynnyng of Genesis. Also it is to wyte, that the profetis speken sum tyme bi figuratif speche, and<sup>e</sup> liknen men to vnresonable beestis, and clepen men bi figuratif speche, liouns, beris<sup>f</sup>, culueris, and ofte<sup>g</sup> othere vnresonable beestis, for certeyn synnes whiche thei vsen acordyng with the kyndis of vnresonable beestis; as men ben clepid liouns for pride, ether raueyn, ether sum other synne; and sum tyme a lioun signefieth Crist, for his power, and sum tyme a lioun signefieth the deuyl, for tirauntrie and raueyn; and men ben clepid beeris, for gredynesse ether glotonye, and mulis, for letcherie; and so of othere beestis and othere synnes. Men ben clepid culueris sum time for madnesse, and sun tyme for innocence, symplenesse, and charite. Bi these reulis and bisi studyng of the text, men moun listli vnderstonde the derk placis of profetis; and algatis loke wel that the sentence takun of the text be trewe, and acorde<sup>h</sup> with charyte, and thanne it is the sentence of the Hooli Goost, as seynt Austyn seith.

veniaunce of hym is not turned awei, but 3it his hond is stretchid forth; and the 18 puple is not turned a3en to the Lord smytynge it. For whi wickidnesse is kyndlid as fier; it schal deuoure the breris and thornes, and it schal be kyndlid in the thickenesse of the forest, and it schal be wlappid togidere in the pride of smoke. In the wrathe of the Lord 19 of oostis the lond schal be disturblid, and the puple schal be as the mete of fier; a man schal not spare his brothir. And 20 he schal boowe to the ri3t half, and he schal hungre, and he schal ete at the left half, and he schal not be fillid; ech man schal deuoure the fleisch of his arm. Mauoure the lond, and synnen shuln his dwelleris; and<sup>u</sup> therfore waxen woode shul his tilieres, and ther shul be lafte fewe men. Weilede the vyndage, feblid is the vyne; inwardli weileden alle that<sup>8</sup> gladeden in herte. Cesede the ioze of tymbris, restide the soun of men gladende; al stille was the swetnesse of the harpe. With song thei shul not drinke wyn; bitter shal be the drinke to men drinkende it. Al defouled is the cite of vanyte; closid is eche hous, no man entrende. Cry shal ben vp on the wyn in the stretes, desert is alle gladnesse, translatid is the ioze of the lond. Laft is in the huge cite wilderness, and wrecchidnesse shal oppressen the zates. For these thingus shul be in the myddel of the lond, in the myddel of puples, what maner if fewe oile beries that lefen ben shaken out of the olyue tree, and cluster braunches, whan were endid the vyndage. These shul reren vp ther vois, and preisen, whan shal be glorified the Lord; thei shul nezen fro the se. For that in techingus glorifieth the Lord; in iles of the se, the name of the Lord God of Irael. Fro the endes of the erthe preisingus<sup>v</sup> wee han herd, the glorie of the riȝtwis. And I seide, My priue thing to me, my priue thing to<sup>w</sup> me. 'Wo to me<sup>x</sup>, the lawe breking thei breenen, and in lawe breking of the ouer don thingus thei breenen the lawe. Vyndage morenyde, the vyne is sijk; alle men that weren glad in herte weilden. The ioie of tympanis ceesside,<sup>8</sup> the sowne of glad men restide; the swetnesse of harpe with song was stille. Thei schulen not drynke wyn; a bittere drynk schal be to hem that schulen drynke it. The citee of vanyte is al to-brokun; ech hous is closid, for no man entrith. Cry schal be on wyn in streetis, al gladnesse is forsakun, the ioie of erthe is 'takun aweik. Desolacioun<sup>1</sup> is left in the citee, and wretchidnesse schal oppresse the zatis. For these thingis schulen be in the myddis of erthe, in the myddis of pupilis, as if a fewe fruitis of olyue trees that ben left ben schakun of fro the olyue tre, and racyns, whanne the vyndage is endid. shal be schakun with schakyng, as a drunkun man. And it shal be takun 21 awei, as the tabernacle of o nyzt, and the wickidnesse therof schal greue it; and it schal falle down, and it schal not adde, for to rise azen. And it schal be, in that dai the Lord schal visite on the knyzt-hod of heuene an hi<sup>z</sup>, and on the kyngis of erthe, that ben on erthe. And thei schulen be 22 gaderid togidere in the gadering togidere of a bundel in to the lake, and thei schulen be closid there in prisoun; and aftir many daies thei schulen be visited. And the 23 moone schal be aschamed, and the sunne schal be confoundid<sup>m</sup>, whanne the Lord of oostis schal regne in the hil of Sion, and in Jerusalem, and schal be glorified in the

CAP. XXVII.

1 In that dai viseten shal the Lord in his harde swerd, and gret, and strong, vp on leuyathan, an eddere, <sup>a</sup> leuour, and vp on leuyathan, <sup>a</sup> crookid wounde serpent<sup>k</sup>; and he shal sle the whal, that 2 is in the se. In that day the vyne<sup>3</sup>erd<sup>1</sup> 3 of good cleer wyn shal synge to hym. I the Lord that kepe it, feerli shal heelden out to it, lest par auenture it be visitid 4 azen it; nyzt and dai I kepe it, indignacioun is not to me. Who shal <sup>3</sup>yue me a thorne, and a brere? In bataile I shal go 5 vp on it, I shal brennen it togidere. Or more I shal holde my strengthe? He shal do pes to me, pes he shal don to me.
6 Who shal go out with bure fro Jacob?
Flouren and burioune shal Irael, and they shul fulfille the face of the world 7 with sed. Whether after the plage of the smytende hymself he smot hym? or as he sloo<sup>3</sup> the slayne men of hym, so he is 8 slayn? In mesure azen mesure, whan leid to it shal be, he shal deme it; he bitho<sup>3</sup>te in his harde spirit, by the day of hete.
9 Therfor vp on this shal ben forzouen wickidnesse to<sup>m</sup> the hous of Jacob, and this al the frute, that be don awei his synne, whan he shal leyn alle the stones of the auter as the<sup>n</sup> hurtlid stones of askes<sup>o</sup>.
Stonde shul not the maumet wodes, and 10 the maumet wassing temples. Forsothe the strengthid cite shal be desolat, the faire shal ben forsake, and lafte as desert; there<sup>p</sup> shal be fed the calf, and there shal he lyn, and waste the ouermestes of it.
11 In the drozte of his rip to-treden shul ben wymmen, comende and techende it.
Forsothe ther is not the puple wys, therfore shal<sup>q</sup> not han mercy of it, that made it; and that<sup>r</sup> foormede it, shal not spare 12 to it. And it shal be, in that dai shal the Lord smyte, fro the wombe of the flod vnto the strem of Egipt; and <sup>3</sup>ee shul be gedered togidere oon and oon, <sup>3</sup>ee sonus

CAP. XXVII.

In that dai the Lord schal visite in his 1 hard swerd, and greet, and strong, on leuyathan, serpent, a barre, and on leuy-athan, the crookid serpent; and he schal sle the whal, which is in the see. In that 2 dai the vyner of cleen wyn and good schal synge to him. Y am the Lord that kepe 3 that vyner; sudeynli Y schal <sup>3</sup>yue drynke to it, lest perauenture it be visitid azens it; nyzt and dai Y kepe it, indignacioun 4 is not to me. Who schal <sup>3</sup>yue me a thorn and brere? In batel Y schal go on it, Y schal brenne it togidere. Whether rather 5 Y schal holde my strengthe? It schal make pees to me, it schal make pees to me, for the merit of hem that schulen go out with 6 fersnesse fro Jacob. Israel schal floure and brynge forth seed, and thei schulen fille the face of the world with seed. Whether 7 he smoot it bi the wounde of the puple of Jewis smytynge hym? ether as it killide the slayn men of hym, so it was slayn? 8 In mesure azens mesure, whanne it schal<sup>8</sup> be cast awei, he schal deme it; he bi-thou<sup>3</sup>te in his hard spirit, bi the dai of heete. Therfor on this thing wickidnesse 9 schal be forzouun to the hous of Jacob, and this schal be al the fruyt, that the synne therof be don awei, whanne it hath set all the stoonys of the auter as the stonys of aische hurtlid donn. Wodis 10 and templis schulen not stonde. Forsothe the strong citee schal be desolat, the fair citee schal be left, and schal be forsakun as a desert; there a calf schal be lesewid, and schal ligge there, and schal waste the hignessis therof. In the drynesse of ripe 11 corn therof wymmen comynge, and thei that techen it, schulen be al to-brokun.
Forsothe it is not a wijs puple, therfor he that made it, schal not haue mercy on it; and he that formyde it, schal not spare it.
And it schal be, in that dai the Lord schal 12 smyte thee, fro the botme of the flood 'til

And it schal be, in that dai me schal come<sup>13</sup> with a greet trumpe, and thei that weren lost, schulen come fro the lond of Assiriens, and thei that weren cast out, schulen come fro the lond of Egipt; and they schulen worschipe the Lord, in the hooli hil in Jerusalem.

CAP. XXVIII.

Wo to the coroun of pride, to the drunkun men of Effraym, and to the flour fallynge doun of the glorie of the ful out ioiying therof, that weren in the cop of the fatteste valei, and erriden<sup>x</sup> of wyn. Lo! the myzti and strong Lord, as the<sup>2</sup> feersnesse of hail, a<sup>y</sup> whirlwynd brekyng togidere, as the fersnesse of many watris flowynge, and sent out on a large lond. The coroun of pride of the drunken men<sup>3</sup> of Effraym schal be defoulid with feet, and the flour of glorie of the ful out ioi-<sup>4</sup> yng of hym, that is on the cop of valei<sup>z</sup> of fat thingis, schal be fallynge doun, as a tymeli thing bifer the ripenesse of heruest; which whanne a man seyng biholdith, anoon as he takith with hond, he schal deuoure it. In that dai the Lord of<sup>5</sup> oostis schal be a coroun of glorie, and a garlond of ful out ioiying, to the residue of his puple; and a spirit of doom to<sup>a</sup> hym<sup>6</sup> that sittith on the trone, and strengthe to hem that turnen azeen fro batel to the zate. But also thei knewen not for wyn, and<sup>7</sup> erriden for drunkenesse; the preest and profete knewen not for drunkenesse; thei weren sopen up of wyn, thei erriden in drunkenesse; thei knewen not a profete, thei knewen not doom. For whi alle<sup>8</sup> bordis weren fillid with spuyng and filthis, so that ther was no more place. Whom<sup>9</sup> schal he teche kunnyng, and whom schal he make to vnderstonde heryng?  them the wrd of the Lord, Send, eft send; send, eft send; abijde, eft bijde; abijde, eft bijde; litil there, litil there;
 that thei go, and falle backward, and be 14 to-brosid, and gnared, and taken. For that hereth the wrd of the Lord, see thyngus seith the Lord God<sup>g</sup>, Lo! I shal senden in the foundemens of Sion a corner ston precious, proued, in the foundement foundid; who shal beleuen, hee<sup>3e</sup> 17 he not. And I shal putte in peis dom, and rijtwisnesse in mesure; and the hail shal to-turne vpsodoun the hope of lesyng, and the proteccioun watris shul flowe. And don away shal be zoure pes 18 bond with deth, and zoure couenaunt with helle shal not stonde; scourge flow-ende whan shal passe, see shul be to it 19 in to treading. Whan euer it shal passe, it shal take zou away; for erly the moru-tid it shal passe, in<sup>h</sup> day and nyzt; and al onli the alone greuous birthene vnder-20 standing shal 3yue to the herende. Al to streit forsothe is the beddyng, so that an other falle down; and the shorte man-21 til either mai not couere. As forsothe in the hil of deuyseouns shal stonde the Lord, so in the valei, that is in Gabaon, he shal wrathe, that he do his werk;

thou<sup>b</sup> azen; comaunde thou, comaunde thou azen; abide thou, abide thou azen;
 abide thou, abide thou azen; a litil there, a litil there. For whi in speche of lippe,<sup>11</sup> and in other langage he schal speke to this puple, to which<sup>c</sup> he seide, This is my<sup>12</sup> reste; refreische 3e a weri man, and this is my refreischyng; and thei nolden<sup>d</sup> here.
 And the word of the Lord schal be to<sup>13</sup> hem, Sende thou, sende thou azen; send thou, sende thou azen; abide thou, abide
 thou azen; abide thou, abide thou azen;
 a litil there, a litil there; that thei go, and falle backward, and be al to-brokun, and be snarid, and be takun. For this thing,<sup>14</sup> 3e men scorneris, that ben lordis ouer<sup>e</sup> my puple which is in Jerusalem, here<sup>f</sup> the word of the Lord. For 3e seiden, We han<sup>g</sup><sup>15</sup> smyte a boond of pees with deth, and we han maad couenaunt with helle; a scourge flowynge whanne it schal passe, schal not come on vs, for we han set a leesyng oure hope, and we ben kyuered with a leesyng.
 Therfor the Lord God seith these thingis,<sup>16</sup> Lo! Y schal sende in the fundamentis of Sion a corner stoon precieuse, preuyd, foundid in the fundament; he that bi-leueth, schal not haaste. And Y schal<sup>17</sup>

CAP. LXIV.

1 Wolde God thou shuldist to-breke he-uenus, and comen down, fro thi face hillis 2 shulden flowe down, as out brennyng of fyr they shulden vanshe awei, watris shulden brenne with fyr; that knowen daies of the world. Forsothe thei excit-10 iden hym<sup>p</sup> to wrathfulnesse, and turmentiden the spirit of his hooli; and he was turned in to an enemye to hem, and he ouercam hem in batel. And he hadde11 mynde on the daies of the world, of Moises, and of his puple. Where is he, that ledde hem out of the see, with the scheepherdis of his floc? Where is he, that set-tide the spirit of his holi in the myddil therof; whiche ledde out Moises to the12 rizt half in the arm of his maieste? which departide watris bifore hem, that he schulde make to hym silf a name euer-lastyng; whiche ledde hem out thoru313 depthis of watris, as an hors not stum-blyng in desert, as a beeste goynge down14 in the feeld? The Spirit of the Lord was the ledere therof; so thou leddist thi puple, that thou madist to thee a name of glorie.

Biholde thou fro heuene, and se fro thin15 hooli dwellyng place, and fro the seete of thi glorie. Where is thi feruent loue, and thi strengthe, the multitude of thin entailis, and of thi merciful doynge?
Tho<sup>q</sup> withhelden hem silf on me. Forsothe16 thou art oure fadir, and Abraham knew not vs, and Israel knew not vs. Thou, Lord,17 art oure fadir, and oure azeenbiere; thi name is fro the world. Lord, whi hast thou maad vs to erre fro thi weies? thou hast made hard oure herte, that we dreden not thee? be thou conuertid, for thi seruauntis, the lynages of thin eritage. Thei18 hadden as nou3t thin hooli puple in pos-sessioun, and oure enemyes defouliden thin halewyng. We ben maad as in the bi-19 gynnyng, whanne thou were not Lord of vs, nethir thi name was clepid to help on vs.

CAP. LXIV.

I wolde that thou brakist heuenes, and camest down, that hillis fletiden awei fro thi face, and failiden as brennyng<sup>r</sup> of fier,2 3 Whan thou shalt do merueiles, wee shuln not sustene. Thou descendedest, and fro 4 thi face mounteynes floweden<sup>y</sup> down. Fro the world thei herden not, ne with eres parceyueden; the eze saȝ not, thou God, withoute thee, what thingus thou hast 5 mad redi to men abidende thee. Thou aȝen came to the gladere, and to the doende riȝtwisnesse; in thi weies<sup>z</sup> thei shul recorden of thee. Lo! thou wrath-edist, and wee han synned; in hem wee weren euermor, and wee shul ben saaf.

 6 And wee ben mad as vnclene, alle wee; as<sup>a</sup> the cloth of the womman roten blod flowende, alle oure riȝtwisnesses; and wee fellen as a lef alle, and oure wickid-7 nesses<sup>b</sup> as wind token awei vs. Ther is not, that inwardly clepe thi name, that rise, and holde thee; thou hast hid thi face fro vs, and thou hast hurtlid vs in 8 the hond of oure wickidnesse<sup>c</sup>. And now, Lord, oure fader thou art; wee forsothe clei, and oure makere thou, and 9 the werkus of thin hondus, alle wee. Ne wrathe thou, Lord, ynouȝ, and no more haue thou mynde of oure wickidnesse<sup>c</sup>.
 10 Lo! Lord, bihold, thi puple alle wee. The cite of thin<sup>cc</sup> hoeli mad is desert<sup>d</sup> Sion, desert mad is Jerusalem, desolat is<sup>e</sup> the 11 hous of oure halewing and of oure glorie, where preiseden thee oure fadris, mad is in out brennyng of fyr; and alle oure<sup>f</sup> desirable thingus ben turned in to 12 fallingus. Whether vp on these thingus thou shalt withholden thee, Lord? stille shalt thou be, and tormenten vs lugele?
 1 Thei soȝten me, that biforn askeden not; thei founden that soȝten not me.

CAP. LXV.

I seide, Lo! I, lo! Y, to the Jentilis that knewe not me, and that inwardli clep-

[Prologue on Jeremiah<sup>a</sup>.]

This profete Jeremye tolde openli thingis to comynge, and not in derk speche, as Ysaie and othere profetis; for he telde vtterli the destruccioun of Jerusalem to be doon of Caldeis, and the cite and the hous of God to be brent with fjr; but warnynge hem bifore to leue her synnes, and her idolatrie, and to come azen to the trewe wurschipping of God, schewinge the grete merci of God, not willinge ony man to perische, that wole come to amendement.

JEREMYE, the profete, to whom this prologe is ascriued, as anent<sup>b</sup> the Ebrues is seen to ben booistousere than the sermoun of Isaie, and of Osee, and than<sup>c</sup> othere profetes; but in wittes he is euene, sithen that in the same spirit he profeciede; but the symplenesse of speche fel to hym of the place in whiche he was born. Forsothe he was of Anatoth, that vnto this dai is a litil town, bi thre myle beende fro Jerusalem; a prest of prestus, and in his moder wombe halewid; thurȝ his maidenhed halewende to the chirche of Crist a gospel man. This a child bigan to profecien; and the caitifte of the chef cite, and of Jewerie, not only in spirit, but and with eȝen of<sup>d</sup> flesh beheeld. Now forsothe Assiries hadden translatid the ten lynagis of Irael in to Meedis; now the townes of Jentiles weldedden the londis of them. Wherfore in Jewere onli<sup>e</sup> and Beniamyn he profeciede; and of his cite the fallingus with fourefold abece, he weilede, the whiche wee<sup>f</sup> han ȝolden<sup>g</sup> to the<sup>h</sup> mesure of metre and vers<sup>i</sup>. Therfore the ordre of viseouns, that anent Grekes and Latynes outerli is confoundid, to the rathere feith wee han amendyd. The boc forsothe of Baruch, his notorie, that anent the Ebrues is not rad, ne had, wee han laft; for alle these thingus curses of enemys abidende, to whom nede is me to ansvern bi my werkis a rowe. And this I suffere, for ȝee constreynen, O! Paule and Eustoche; but more riȝt it were, to the shorting of euel, to putte mesure to the wodnesse of them bi my silence, than to eche dai sum what of newe thing writende, to<sup>k</sup> terre<sup>l</sup> the wodnesse of the enuyouse.

if he shul condempne, that he seith biforn, that thei be delyuered by penaunce, that weren dampned bi gilte. Nynyuytes weren dampned synneres of<sup>o</sup> God; 3it forsothe thre dazes, and Nynyue was to be turned vp so doun; God wolde not with silence punshe condempned men, but, 3yuende to them place of penaunce, sente an Ebru profete, that shulde seyn, 3it thre dazes; and Nynyue shal be turned vp so doun; lest persheden, that is, that weren dampned, but doende penaunce, thei shulden purchacen mercy. Sodomytes also<sup>p</sup> and Gomorreis now to hard torment weren ordeyned, as the sermoun of God to<sup>a</sup> Abraham shewide; nerthelater<sup>e</sup> that theiris<sup>r</sup> was, the aungelis diden, wynende hem to sauen, that sheweden himself vnwrthi helthe; and seiende to Loth, Is ther any man to thee heer sone in lawe, or sones, outh<sup>s</sup> doztris? ne thei vnknewen hem not 'to ben<sup>t</sup> to folewen Loth, but thei sheweden hern<sup>u</sup> to gidere and his benygnete and loue that hem hadde sent. Lijc sum what iu Jeremye wee finden. Notid is forsothe the tyme of his profecye, whan he gan<sup>v</sup>, or hadde endid to<sup>w</sup> profecyen. Seith therfore sum man, What to me the tyme of the storie? for he began to profecien in the dazes of Josie, sone<sup>x</sup> of Amos, the<sup>y</sup> king of Juda, vnto the threttenthe<sup>z</sup> 3er in his regne<sup>a</sup>. Ther after he profeciede in the dazes of Joachym, sone of Josie, the<sup>b</sup> king of Juda; and bi thre kingus his profecie is strajt out, vnto the caitifte of Jerusalem. In the fifte monyth condempnede God Jerusalem for his synnes, and that was the laste sentence, that caitif thei shulden be forsake; but sithen God is the<sup>c</sup> makere of men, ne any inan wile to pershen, bifor that<sup>d</sup> the tyme of destruccioun shulde stonden in, he sente and this profete, that shulde bidde to penaunce. He sente the same also vnder the secounde king<sup>e</sup> after the puple; he sente also vnder the thridde. Now the caitifte stod on, and 3it to helthe God stired, 3yuende<sup>f</sup> and biforn o dai place of penaunce; wherfore it is write, vnto the caitifte of Jerusalem, and vnto the fifte moneth, to hau profecied to Jerusalem. Now the<sup>g</sup> bondis<sup>h</sup> of the enemys hadden streyned the hondis, and nerthelater this God seide, Lo! caitif 3ee ben mad, doth penaunce; tho3 late, pre3eth me, and I shal spare to 3ou; I mai delyuere fro the caitifte, that I haue take 3ou, vn to the ful ending of the elleuenthe 3er of Sedechie, sone of Osie, king of Juda. This also of vs wee moun vnderstonde, a synnere forsothe<sup>i</sup> to be taken to Sathan; no thing is ferr fro it, that Jewis ben taken to Nabugodonosor, that as<sup>k</sup> hem God grauntide to the<sup>l</sup> aduersarie for ofte vsid vnpitousnesse, so wee ben taken for oure synnes to spirituel Nabugodonosor, that whom he hath take to Sathan, thei lerne to not blasfemen. Weenest thou hou myche euel it is to synnen, that he take to Sathan, caityuende the soules of them that ben forsaken of God? not withoute cause, that is, ne with oute dom. Whan forsothe he shal sende reyn vp on the vyne, and that reyn shal bringe forth thornes, what shal he do, but that he comaunde to the<sup>m</sup> wederes, that thei reyne not vp on the<sup>n</sup> vyne weder? Ny3 therfore<sup>o</sup> is and oure caitifte, if wee do not penaunce, that wee be take to Nabugodonosor, king of Babiloyne, whiche now liende<sup>p</sup> ny3, the wrdis of profetis<sup>q</sup>, of the lawe, of the apostolis, and of the selue Crist<sup>r</sup> 'ful out biden vs<sup>s</sup> to penaunce, stern to helthe. ## CAP. IV.

1 If thou shalt turne a3een, Irael, seith the Lord, to me be conuertid; if thou shalt take awei thin hurtende thingus fro my face, thou shalt not be to-stirid.
2 And thou shalt swern, The Lord lyueth, in treuthe and in dom and in ri3twisnes; and blissen shul hym folc of kinde, and 3 hym preisen. These thingus forsothe seith the Lord to the man of Juda and to the dwellere of Jerusalem, Newith to 3ou a newe tilid lond, and wileth not 4 sowen vp on thornes. Beth circumeidid to the Lord, and doth awei the vtmost<sup>e</sup> 3erde felles of 3oure hertes, 3ee men of Juda, and dwelleris of Jerusalem; lest paraenture go out as fyr myn indignacioun, and be tend vp, and ther be not that quenche, for the malice of 3oure 5 tho3tus. Telleth out in Juda, and in Jerusalem maketh herd; speketh, and syngeth with a trumpe in the lond; cri-eth strongli, and seith, Beth gedered, and 6 go wee in<sup>f</sup> the strengthid cites. Rereth a toene in Sion, beth<sup>g</sup> coumfortid, and wileth not stonde; for euel I bringe<sup>h</sup> to zaten her Lord God. Be 3e conuertid,<sup>22</sup> sones, turnynge a3en, and Y schal heele 3oure turnyngis awei. Lo! we comen to thee; for thou art oure Lord God. Verili<sup>23</sup> litol hillis weren lieris, the multitude of mounteyns was fals; verili in oure Lord God is the helthe of Israel. Schenscipe<sup>24</sup>

As a cisterne makith his water coold, so it made his malice coold; wickidnesse and distriyng schal euer be herd ther ynne bfore me, sikenesse and wounde. Jerusalem, be thou tauzt, lest perauenture my soule go awei fro thee; lest perauenture Y sette thee forsakun, a loond vnhabitable. The Lord of oostis seith theses thingis, Thei schulen gadere til to a racyn, thei schulen gadere the remenauntis of Israel as in a vyner; turne thin hond, as a gaderer of grapis to the bascat. To whom schal Y speke, and to whom schal Y seie witnessing, that he here? Lo! the eeris of hem ben vncircumcidid, and thei moun not here; lo! the word of the Lord is maad to hem in to dispit, and thei schulen not resseiue it. Therfor Y am ful of the strong veniaunce<sup>a</sup> of the Lord, and Y traueide suffrynge. Schede thou out on<sup>b</sup> a litil child with outforth, and on the counsel of yonge men togidere; for a man with his wijf schal be takun, and an eeld man with him that is ful of daies. ## CAP. X.

1 Hereth the wrd that the Lord spac 2 vp on ȝou, the<sup>h</sup> hous of Irael. These thingus seith the Lord, Aftir the weies of Jentiles wileth not lerne, and fro the signes of heuene wileth not drede, that 3 dreden Jentiles, for the lawis of puples ben veyne. For the tree of the wilde wode kut of the werc of the hondus of the 4 craftes man in an hachet; with siluer and gold he enourneth it; with nailes and hameres ioynede it, that it 'be not<sup>i</sup> 5 losid atwynne. In licesse of a formed ymage thei ben forgid, and thei shul not speke; born thei shul be taken away, for thei moun not go; wileth not thanne outforth, and ȝonge men fro the stretis. Speke thou, the Lord seith, these thingis, 22 And the deed bodi of a man schal fal doun as a toord on the face of the cun-trei, and as hei bihynde<sup>m</sup> the bak of the mowere, and noon is<sup>n</sup> that gaderith. The 23 Lord seith these thingis, A wise man haue not glorie in his wisdom, and a strong man haue not glorie in his strengthe, and a riche man haue not glorie in hise rich-essiss; but he that hath glorie, haue glorie 24 in this, to wite and knowe me, for Y am the Lord, that do merci and dom and riȝtfulnesse in erthe. For whi these thingis plesen me, seith the Lord. Lo! daies 25 comen, seith the Lord, and Y schal visite on ech man that hath prepucie vncircumcidid; on Egipt, and on Juda, and on 26 Edom, and on the sones of Amon, and on Moab, and on alle men that ben clippid on long heer, and dwellen in desert; for whi alle hethene men han prepucie, forsothe al the hous of Israel ben vncircumcidid<sup>o</sup> in herte.

CAP. X.

The hous of Israel, here ȝe the word<sup>1</sup> which the Lord spac on ȝou. The Lord 2 seith these thingis, Nyle ȝe lerne aftir the weies of hethene men, and nyle ȝe drede of the signes of heuene, whiche signes hethene men dreden. For the lawis of 3 puplis ben veyn, for whi the werk of hondis of a crafti man hath kit doun with an axe a tre of the forest. He made it fair 4 with siluer and gold; with naylis and hameris he ioynede it<sup>p</sup> togidere, that it be not loosid. Idols ben maad in the lic- 5 nesse of a palm tree, and schulen not speke; tho schulen be takun and be bo-run, for tho moun not go; therfor nyle

 10 of craftus men alle these thingus. The Lord forsothe is verre God; he<sup>s</sup> is God lyu-ende, and king euermor lastende; of his indignacioun shal be moued the erthe, and 11 suffren shul not Jentiles his threting. Thus<sup>t</sup> thanne ȝee shul sey to them, The goddis that 'maden not heuene and erthe, pershe thei<sup>u</sup> fro the erthe, and fro these thingus 12 that ben vnder heuene. That maketh the erthe in his strengthe, maketh redi biforn the world in his wisdam, and in 13 his prudence streccheth out heuenus. At his vois he ȝyueth multitude of watris in heuene, and rereth vp litle cloudus fro the vtmostus<sup>v</sup> of erthe; leitus in to reyn he maketh, and bringeth out wind of his schal not drede thee? for whi onour is thin among alle wise men of hethene men, and in alle the rewmes of hem noon is lijk thee. Thei schulen be preued, vnwise and 8 foolis togidere; the techyng of her vanyte is a tre. Siluer wlappid is brouȝt fro 9 Tharsis, and gold fro Ophaz; it is the werk of a crafti man, and of the hond of a worchere in metel; iacynet and purpur ben the clothing of tho<sup>r</sup>; alle these thingis ben the werk of werk men. Forsothe 10 the Lord is veri God; he is God lyuynge; and a kyng enerlastynge; the erthe schal be mouyd togidere of his indignacioun, and hethene men schulen not suffre the manaassing of hym. Therfor thus ȝe 11 schulen seie to hem, Goddis that maden not heuene and erthe, perische fro erthe<sup>s</sup>, and fro these thingis that ben vndur heuene. He is God, that makith the erthe 12 in his strengthe, makith<sup>t</sup> redi the world in his wisdom, and stretchith forth heuenes bi his prudence. At his vois he 13 ȝyueth the multitude of watris in heuene, and he reisith mystis fro the endis of erthe; he makith leitis into reyn, and ledith out wynd of his tresouris. Ech 14 and ʒee shul be to me in to a puple, and 5 Y shal be to ʒou in to a God; that Y rere the oth that Y swor to ʒoure fadris, me to ʒyue to them a lond flowende mylc and the dwelleris of the loond in this while;

 and Y schal ʒyue tribulacioun to hem, so that thei be not foundun. Wo to me on 19 my sorewe, my wounde is ful yuel; for-sothe Y seide, Pleynli this is my sike-hony, as is this dai. And Y answerde, 6 and seide, Amen, Lord. And the Lord seide to me, Crye out alle these wrdus, in the cite<sup>e</sup> of Juda, and withouteforth Je-7 rusalem, seiende, Hereth the wrdus of this couenaunt, and doth them; for witnessende Y witnessede ȝoure faders, in the dai that Y ladde them out fro the lond of Egipte, vnto this day; erly risende Y<sup>f</sup> witnessede, and seide, Hereth my 8 vois. And thei herden not, ne bowed in ther ere, but wenten awei eche<sup>g</sup> in to the broȝte in vp on hem alle the wrdus of this couenaunt, that Y comaundide that thei 10 shulden do, and thei diden not. And the Lord seide to me, Ther is founde coniuracioun in the men of Juda, and in the dwelleris of Jerusalem; thei ben turned aȝeen to<sup>i</sup> the rathere wickid-for this puple, and ne take thou too for them preising and orisoun; for Y shal not heren in the<sup>n</sup> time of ther cry to me, 15 in tyme of ther torment. What is, that my loued in myn hous doth many hidschulde ȝyue to hem a lond flowynge with mylk and hony, as this dai is. And Y answeride, and seide, Amen, Lord. And 6 the Lord seide to me, Crye thou alle these wordis in the citees of Juda, and with out Jerusalem, and seie thou, Here ȝe the wordis of this couenaunt, and do ȝe tho<sup>z</sup>; for Y 7 witnessynge haue witnessid to ȝoure fa-dris, in the dai in which Y ledde hem out of the lond of Egipt, 'til to<sup>a</sup> this dai; Y roos eerli, and witnesside, and seide, Here ȝe my vois. And thei herden not, nether<sup>8</sup> bowiden doun her eere, but thei ȝeden forth ech man in the schrewidnesse of his yuel herte; and Y brouȝte in on hem alle the wordis of this couenaunt, which Y comaundide that thei schulden do, and thei diden not. And the Lord seide to 10 me, Sweryng togidere is foundun in the men of Juda, and in the dwelleris of Jerusalem; thei turneden aȝen to the for-mere wickidnessis of her fadris, that nol-men ȝeden aftir alien goddis, for to serue hem; the hous of Israel and the hous of Juda maden voide my couenaunt, which Y made with the fadris of hem. Where-

Lord, thou knowist, haue thou<sup>15</sup> mynde on me, and visite me, and delyuere me fro hem that pursuen me; nyle thou take me in thi pacience, knowe thou, that Y suffride schenschipec for thee. Thi wordis<sup>16</sup> ben foundun, and Y eet tho; and thi word was maad to me in to ioye, and in to gladnesse of myn herte; for thi name, Lord God of oostis, is clepid to help on me. Y<sup>17</sup> sat not in the counsel of pleieris, and Y hadde glorie for the face of thin hond; Y sat aloone, for thou fillidist me with bittirnesse. Whi is my sorewe maad euer-<sup>18</sup> lastinge, and my wounde dispeirid forsook to be curid? it is maad to me, as a leesying of vnfeithful watris. For this thing the<sup>19</sup> Lord seith these thingis, If thou turnest, Y schal turne thee, and thou schalt stonde bfore my face; and if thou departist precieuse thing fro vijl thing, thou schalt be as my mouth; thei schulen be turned to thee, and thou schalt not be turned to hem. 24trauailende with childe? I lyue, seith the Lord, for if shul be Jeconyas, the sone of Joachym, king of Juda, a ring in my riȝt hond, thennus I shal pullen hym 25away. And Y shal ȝyue thee in the hond of men sechende thi soule, and in the hond of hem whos face thou dredist, and in the hond of Nabugodonosor, king of Babiloyne, and in the hond of Caldeis.
26And Y shal sende thee, and thi moder that gat thee, in to an alien lond, in whiche ȝee ben not born, and there ȝee shul die; 27and in to the lond to whiche thei reren ther soule, that thei turne aȝeen thider, 28and thei turne aȝeen shul not. Whether a britil vessel and a brosid this man Jeconyas? whether a vessel withoute al voluptuouste? Whi throwen awei ben he and his sed, and cast aferr in to the 29lond that thei knewe not? Erthe, erthe, erthe, here the sermoun of the Lord.
30These thingus seith the Lord, Writ this man a bareyn man, that in his dazes shal not be welsum; ne forsothe ben shal of his sed a man, that sitte vp on the see of Dauid, and power haue more yn Juda.

CAP. XXIII.

1 Wo to the shepperdis, that scateren and to-tern the floc of my leswe, seith the 2 Lord. Therefore these thingus seith the Lord God of Irael to the shepperdus, that feden my puple, ȝee scatereden<sup>h</sup> my floc, and threwen out hem<sup>hh</sup>, and han not visitid hem; lo! Y shal visite vp on ȝow the malice of ȝoure studies, seith the 3 Lord. And Y shal gedere the remnauntus of my floc fro alle londis, to whiche Y shal caste hem out thider; and Y shal turne them to ther wilde feldus, and thei 4 shul growe, and be multepliede. And Y shal reue vp on hem shepperdus, and thei shul fede them; thei<sup>i</sup> shuln no mor ben aferd, ne inwardly dreden; and no man shal be soȝt of the noumbre, seith the rew of a womman trauelynge of child?

I lyue, seith the Lord, for thouȝ Jeconye,<sup>24</sup> the sone of Joachym, kyng of Juda, were a ring in my riȝt hond, fro thennus Y shal drawe awei hym. And Y schal ȝyue<sup>25</sup> thee in the hond of hem that seken thi lijf, and in the hond of hem whos face thou dredist, and in the hond of Nabugodonosor, kyng of Babiloyne, and in the hond of Caldeis. And Y schal sende thee,<sup>26</sup> and thi moder that gendride thee, in to an alien lond, in which ȝe weren not borun, and there ȝe schulen die; and<sup>27</sup> thei schulen not turne aȝen in to the lond, to which thei reisen her soule, that thei turne aȝen thidur. Whether this man<sup>28</sup> Jeconye is an erthene vessel, and al to-brokun? whether a vessel withouten al likyng? Whi ben he and his seed cast awei, and cast forth in to a lond which thei knewen not? Erthe, erthe, erthe,<sup>29</sup> here thou the word of the Lord. The<sup>30</sup> Lord seith these thingis, Write thou this man bareyn, a man that schal not haue prosperite in hise daies; for of his seed schal be no man, that schal sitte on the seete of Dauid, and haue powere ferthere in Juda.

CAP. XXIII.

Wo to the scheepherdis, that scateren<sup>1</sup> and to-drawn the floc of my lesewe, seith the Lord. Therfor the Lord God of Is-<sup>2</sup> rael seith these thingis to the scheepherdis, that feeden my puple, ȝe han scaterid my floc, and han cast hem out, and han not visitid hem; lo! Y schal visite on ȝou the malice of<sup>c</sup> ȝoure studies, seith the Lord.
And Y schal gadere togidere the reme-<sup>3</sup> nauntis of my floc fro alle loudis, to whiche Y schal caste hem out thidur; and Y schal turne hem to her feeldis, and thei schulen encreesse, and schulen be multiplied. And Y schal reise<sup>d</sup> scheepherdis on<sup>4</sup> hem, and thei schulen feede hem; thei schulen no more drede, and schulen not be aferd; and noon schal be souȝt of the 5 Lord. Lo! dazes comen, seith the Lord, and I shal rere Daud a rijtwis buriownyng; and regne he shal king, and wys he shal be, and don he shal dom and rijt-6 wisnesse in erthe. In tho dazes saued shal ben Juda, and Irael shal dwelle trostili; and this is the name that thei 7 shul clepen hym, Oure rijtwis Lord. For this lo! dazes comen, seith the Lord, and thei shul sei no more, The Lord lyueth<sup>k</sup>, that ladde out the sonus of Irael fro the 8 lond of Egipt; but, The Lord lyueth, that ladde out, and brozte to the sed of the hous of Irael fro the lond of the north, and fro alle londus to the<sup>l</sup> whiche Y hadde cast them oute thider; and thei 9 shul dwelle in ther owne lond. To the profetus; To-brosid is my herte in the<sup>m</sup> myddel of me, al to-trembleden alle<sup>n</sup> my bonus; I am mad as a drunke man, and as a man drunken of wyn, fro the face of the Lord, and fro the face of his hoeli 10 wrdus; for of anoutreres fulfid is the lond. For fro the face of cursing weilide the lond; dried<sup>o</sup> ben the wilde feldus of desert, mad ys the cours of them euel, 11 and the strengthe of hem vnlic<sup>p</sup>. The profete forsothe and the prest ben de-foulid; and in myn hous I fond the euel 12 of hem, seith the Lord. Therefore the weie of hem shal be as<sup>q</sup> slydery in derc-nesses<sup>r</sup>, thei shul be put down forsothe<sup>s</sup>, and falle togidere in it; for I shal bringe to vpon hem eueles, at<sup>t</sup> zer of the visiting 13 of them, seith the Lord. And in the profetis of Samarie Y saz folie, and thei profecieden in Baal, and disceyueden my 14 puple Irael. And in the profetus of Jerusalem Y saz licnesse anoutreres, and weie of lesing; and thei coumforteden the hondus of werst men, that conuertid were not eche fro his malice; 'alle thei<sup>u</sup> ben mad to-me Sodome<sup>v</sup>, and alle hyse 15 dwelleris as Gomorre. Therefore these noumbre seith the Lord. Lo! daies<sup>5</sup> comen, seith the Lord, and Y schal reise a iust buriownyng<sup>e</sup> to Daud; and he schal regne a<sup>f</sup> kyng, and he schal be wijs, and he schal make doom and rijt-fulnesse in erthe. In tho daies Juda schal<sup>6</sup> be sauid, and Israel schal dwelle tristili; and this is the name which thei schulen clepe hym, The Lord oure rijtful. For<sup>7</sup> this thing lo! daies comen, seith the Lord, and thei schulen no more seie, The Lord lyueth, that ledde the sonus of Israel out of the lond of Egipt; but, The Lord lyueth,<sup>8</sup> that ledde out, and brouzte the seed of the hous of Israel fro the lond of the north, and fro alle londis to whiche Y hadde cast hem out thidur; and thei schulen dwelle in her lond. To the prophetis; Myn herte<sup>9</sup> is contrit<sup>g</sup> in the myddis of me, alle my boonys trembliden togidere; Y am maad as a man drunkun, and as a man weet of wyn, of the face of the Lord, and of the face of the hooli wordis of hym; for the<sup>10</sup> lond is fillid with auowteris. For the erthe mourenede of the face of cursyng; the feeldis of desert ben maad drie, the cours of hem is maad yuel, and her strengthe<sup>is</sup> vnlijk. For whi the profete and the prest<sup>11</sup> ben defoulid; and in myn hous, seith the Lord, Y foond the yuel of hem. Therfor<sup>12</sup> the weie of hem schal be as slidur<sup>h</sup> in derknessis, for thei schulen be hurtlid<sup>i</sup>, and schulen<sup>k</sup> falle down therynne; for Y schal bringe on hem yuels, the jeer of visitacioun of hem, seith the Lord. And<sup>13</sup> in the profetis of Samarie Y siz founednesse, and thei profesieden in Baal, and disceyueden my puple Israel. And in the<sup>14</sup> profetis of Jerusalem Y siz licnesse, auou-trie, and the weie of leesying; and thei confortiden the hondis of the worste men, that ech man schulde not conuerte fro his thingus seith the Lord of ostus to profetis, Lo! Y shal fede hem with wrmwed, and drunken hem with galle; fro the profetus forsothe of Jerusalem is gon out 16 defouling vp on al erthe. These thingus seith the Lord of ostus, Wileth not heren the wrdus of the profetes, that profecien to 3ou, and desceyuen 3ou; the viseoun of ther herte thei speken, not of the 17 mouth of the Lord. They seyn to them that blasfemen me, The Lord spac, Pes shal be to 3ou; and to eche that goth in the shreudnesse of his herte thei seiden, 18 Ther shal not come vp on 3ou euel. Who forsothe was ny3 in the counseil of the Lord, and sa3, and herde the sermoun of hym? who biheeld his wrd, and herde?

 19 Lo! the whirlewind of the Lordus indignacioun shal gon out, and tempest brekende out vp on the hed of vnpitous men 20 shal come. The wodnesse of the Lord shal not turne a3een, vnto the tyme that he do, and vnto the tyme that he fulfille the thenking of his herte. In hise laste dazes 3ee shul vnderstonde his counseil.
 21 I sente not the profetes, and thei runnen; Y spac not to them, and thei profecieden.
 22 If thei hadden stonde in my counseil, and knowen hadden mad my wrdis to my<sup>w</sup> puple, I shulde han<sup>x</sup> turned awei hem forsothe fro ther euel weie, and fro

Y schal feed hem with wermod, and Y schal 3yue drynke to hem with galle; for whi defoulyng is goen out of the profetis of Jerusalem on al the lond. The 16 Lord of oostis seith these thingis, Nyle 3e here the wordis of profetis, that profesien to 3ou, and disseyuen 3ou; thei speken the visioun of her herte, not of the mouth of the Lord. Thei seien to hem that 17 blasfemen me, The Lord spac, Pees schal be to 3ou; and thei seiden to ech man that goith in the schrewidnesse of his herte, Yuel schal not come on 3ou. For 18 whi who is present in the councel of the Lord, and si3, and herde his word? who bihelde, and herde the word of hym? Lo! 19 the whirlewynd of the Lordis indignacioun schal go out, and tempest brekyng schal come on the heed of wickid men. 3af to hem, and to the fadris of hem.

CAP. XXV.

The word of the Lord, that was maad<sup>1</sup> to Jeremye, of al the puple of Juda, in the fourthe 3eer of Joachym, the sone of Josie, the king of Juda, aftir that Jeconye was translatid in to Babiloyne; thilke is the firste 3eer of Nabugodonosor, kyng of Babiloyn; which word Jeremy, the pro-phete, spac to al the puple of Juda, and to alle the dwelleris of Jerusalem, and seide, Fro the threttenthe 3eer of the 3 rewme of Josie, the sone of Amon, the kyng of Juda, 'til to<sup>u</sup> this dai, this is the three and twentithe 3eer, the word of the Lord was maad to me; and Y spac to 3ou, and Y roos bi ni3t and spac, and 3e herden not. And the Lord sente to 3ou<sup>4</sup> alle hise seruauntis profetis, and roos ful eerli, and sente, and 3e herden not, nether 3e bowiden 3oure eeris, for to here; whanne<sup>5</sup> he seide, Turne 3e a3en, ech man fro his 3e herden not me, seith the Lord, that 3e terreden me to wrathfulnesse in the werkis of 3oure hondis, in to 3oure yuel. Therfor<sup>8</sup> the Lord of oostis seith these thingis, For that that 3e herden not my wordis, lo! Y<sup>9</sup> schal sende, and take alle the kynredis of 16 alle these wrdus. And seiden the princes and al the puple to<sup>v</sup> the prestys and profetis, Ther is not to this man dom of deth; for in the name of the Lord oure 17 God he spac to vs. Risen thanne the men of the elderes of the lond, and seiden to al the cumpanye of the puple, spek-18 ende, Michie of Morasten was a profete in the dazes of Ezechie, king of Jude; and he seith to al the puple of Jude, sei-ende, These thingus seith the Lord of ostus, Sion as a feeld shal ben ered, and Jerusalem in to an hep of stonus shal be, and the mount of the hous of the Lord 19 in to heiȝtus of wodus. Whether bi deth condempnede hym Ezechie, king of Juda, and al Juda? Whether not thei dredden the Lord, and louli preȝeden the face of the Lord, and it othoȝte the Lord of the euel that he 'hadde spoke<sup>w</sup> azen hem?

And so do we not gret euel azen oure 20 soules. Also ther was a man profeciende in the name of the Lord, Vrias, the sone of Semmei, of Cariathiarim; and he pro-feciede azen this cite, and azen this lond, 21 aftir alle the wrdis of Jeremye. And herde king Joachym, and alle the myȝti men, and his princes these wrdus; and the king soȝte to slen hym; and Vrie herde, and dredde, and fleiȝ, and wente 22 in to Egipt. And king Joachym sente men in to Egipt, Elnathan, the sone of Achabor, and men with him, in to Egipt; 23 and broȝten out Vrie fro Egipt, and broȝten hym to king Joachym; and he<sup>x</sup> smot hym with swerd, and threȝ aferr his careyne in sepulcris<sup>y</sup> of the<sup>z</sup> vnnoble 24 comun. Therefore the hond of Aicham, sone of Safan, was with Jeremye, that he schulde not be take in to the hondus of the puple, and it<sup>a</sup> schulde slen hym.

CAP. XXVII.

1 In the bigynnyng of the regne of Joachym, sone of Josie, king of Juda, don is this wrd to Jeremye fro the Lord, puple seiden to the preestis and profetis, Doom of deth is not to this man; for he spak to vs in the name of oure Lord God.

Therfor men of the eldere men of the lond 17 rysiden<sup>l</sup> vp, and seiden to al the cumpanye of the puple, and spaken, Mychee of Mo- 18 rasten was a profete in the daies of Eze-chie, king of Juda; and he seide to al the puple of Juda, and<sup>k</sup> seide<sup>l</sup>, The Lord of oostis seith these thingis, Sion schal be erid as a feeld, and Jerusalem schal be in to an heap of stoonys, and the hil of the hous of the Lord shal be in to hiȝ thingis of woodis. Whether Ezechie, kyng of Juda, 19 and al Juda condempnede hym bi deth?
Whether thei dredden not the Lord, and bisouȝten the face of the Lord? and it repentide the Lord of the yuel which he spak aȝens hem. Therfor do we not greet yuel aȝens oure soulis. Also Vrye, the 20 sone of Semey, of Cariathiarim, was a man profesyng in the name of the Lord; and he profesiede aȝens this citee, and aȝens this lond, bi alle the wordis of Jeremye. And kyng Joachym, and alle the 21 myȝti men, and princes of heim, herden these wordis; and the kyng souȝte to sle hym; and Vrye herde, and dredde, and he fledde, and entride in to Egipt. And 22 kyng Joachym sente men in to Egipt, Elnathan, the sone of Achabor, and men with hym, in to Egipt; and thei ledden 23 Vrye out of Egipt, and brouȝten hym to kyng Joachym; and the kyng killide hym bi<sup>m</sup> swerd, and castide forth his careyn in the sepulcris of the comyn puple vnnoble.
Therfor the hond of Aicham, sone of Sa- 24 phan, was with Jeremye, that he was not bitakun in to the hondis of the puple, and that it killide not hym.
